

Continuity is the invariant: neither transition may step.
Rebuilding the swing arc from the nominal foot position instead cost 41 mm per lift-off, and stopped the robot walking.

The generator plans FEET, not torques. Everything it returns is a position, a velocity or a force; the impedance law runs two layers below.